

Q&A: Japan's Personal Information Protection Act

This webinar will provide an overview of Japan's Personal Information Protection Act ("PIPA") and the practical points that non-Japanese companies and foreign legal personnel working for Japanese corporations should understand. Although PIPA is similar in some respects to the GDPR (EU General Data Protection Regulation) and the CCPA (California Consumer Privacy Act), it has many unique differences. For any organization handling personal information of Japanese residents, it is essential to thorough understanding this regulation and the policies behind them. This webinar will also cover recent updates to the PIPA.

Schedule

Date and time: Wednesday, May 14, 2025, 13:30-15:30 (Web seminar via Zoom)

Sponsored by Miyake & Associates

Free, No Participation Fee

The program will cover the following topics:

1. Rules businesses must follow while processing personal data under the PIPA

*We will explain the differences between PIPA and the GDPR paying particular attention to the importance of providing individual consent.

2. Rules regarding the cross-border transfer of personal data and extraterritorial application of PIPA and the differences from the GDPR

3. Rules requiring businesses' responses to personal data leakages

* For example, from 2022, businesses must report to the Personal Information Protection Commission and notify the affected individuals when a personal data leak occurs

4. Amendments to the Personal Information Protection Act

Under PIPA, businesses may be liable to pay substantial fines and there will be rules around data processing that must be considered when businesses execute contracts
